Make-up Look

Spring / Summer 2006

Skin turns tanned once again, gorging on the ideal of the volatile, mud-sliding and glistening black and brown waters of the

Burnished Browns

South-American
Amazon. Bearing bright sparkling sediment from the high mountains, ochre, dark chocolate and sand-coloured

streams mingle to map out the Amazon river's multiple origins, their tones merge on skin to reinvent the 80s' unnaturally gorgeous glam – perfecting it into a look of polished metal.

Amazã – multitudinous river-beds polished by dark water-masses form the overpowering Amazon valley. Nature at play with humus, earth, stone, grit.

Bringing water, mud-streaked, murky, or crystal clear, from far-reaching sources into the one powerful stream: encontro das águas, waters' encounter, the Amazon. A whirl of blacks and browns.

A spectacle of colour taking place in the eye of the beholder. Everchanging. Everlasting. Created by perception. Artistic perfection creates this old, new, brand new burnished look on skin:

no risk, no sun, but the ingenuity of finest pigment. Meticulous application of layer after layer of micro-particles in shades of luscious beige and brown, reconstruction of facial landscapes, the hollows and arches of the eyes re-modelled in blue-brown.

glossy lips in skin-tones from sand to rosé make for a true-to-nature, fabulously false finish that is impossible to forge. Be fooled by artifice, be beautiful in burnished browns.

With this spectacular spring and summer look, the Beautiful Company emerges as trend-setter, responding to the destruction of the ozonosphere with an aesthetic statement that idealizes liquid tans as much as the natural wild water sanctuary of the Amazon.
